The Carmel Pine Cone Cymbal

How They See It

Editor of the Pine Cone Cymbal:

May I take this opportunity to give you a few facts which might interest your readers, about the need for a new fire engine, in the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department, of which I am a member?

Contrary to the general opinion of the public; we do not have three fire engines. We have one good, twelve-year-old, Mack fire truck, a salvage truck, (which is not a fire engine, but a truck used for salvage and rescue work), and an eighteen-year-old worn out Luverne fire engine. This engine, because of its age, cannot be depended upon to pump enough water, without breaking down, to put out a fire of any size. Aside from that fact, it can no longer climb our steep hills. I believe you were present at a recent drill and were much amused because the firemen had to jump off the Luverne and help to push it up the Dolores street hill!

When you consider these facts, you soon realize that our Fire Department, with its present equipment, could not handle more than one fire at a time, and we would even have trouble in putting out a large fire. Even in normal times, this is a serious situation, but in these times it becomes critical and dangerous. One fire which gets a good start here might mean the loss of many homes or business buildings.

If the townspeople fail to vote "YES" at the Special Election on Tuesday, August 18th, we are losing our last chance, perhaps until after the war, to secure needed fire protection. We are also faced with a possible rise in insurance rates, due to the fact that the National Board of Fire Underwriters does not consider that we have adequate fire equipment for the

Traffic Judge Not Marryin' Judge Yet

Though City Judge George T. Ross cheerfully came down to his office at ten o'clock Tuesday night to marry a soldier to his sweetheart, and has a letter on file asking that he be on hand this Saturday at eleven o'clock a.m. to perform the same service for a couple from San Francisco, he doesn't qualify as a "marryin'" judge.

His main business is still handling traffic violators, 40 this week, 20 of whom were first offenders and got off with a judicial wigging. The other twenty drew fines ranging from $1 to $15.

The wedding ceremony was for Bonny Bell Jordon of Nebraska and Harold Severance Moore, Jr., Illinois, attended by Adaline Guth and Raymond I. Proulx Jr.

FREE RIDES TO POLLS

The Women's Auxiliary of the Carmel Fire Department are arranging for free transportation to and from the polls on election day, Tuesday, August the 18th. If all those who wish transportation will call Carmel 158, Mrs. Fred Warren will arrange to have someone call for them and take them home. Those helping her, and volunteering their time and cars are: Mrs. Barney Bracisco, Mrs. William France, Mrs. William Askew and Mrs. Carl Rasmussen.

Mrs. Vincent Torras is assisting at the telephone.

Look Who's Paying for Whose Beans!

Any day now when you hear a big kid say to a little kid,

"Out of my way, Sprout!"

The little kid is very likely to answer,

"You'd better be careful, Mister—you're pushing around your meal ticket."

What has happened is this:

For fourteen years the Sunset school cafeteria has operated at a profit.

For one year the high school cafeteria has operated and come up with a $220 deficit. It has been reorganized this year and will probably fare better, but there is still that $220 worth of bills and nothing handy with which to pay them.

The school board hopefully sent them to County Superintendent Frost. Mr. Frost promptly returned them. Tuesday night the School board, looking mildly guilty, decided to borrow enough from the Sunset cafeteria fund to pay the High School cafeteria deficit.

School Board Is Sad But Firm— August 31 Is It

This year Carmel is not going to be different. School will open on the same day as the other Peninsula schools, August 31, despite the reluctance on the part of the School board to inflict the early date on the students.

"The sun doesn't come out of the fog until September 1," Mrs. Anita Dormody said during the discussion of opening date at the school board meeting Tuesday night. "It seems a shame to send the children back to school about the time our Carmel summer starts."

Peter Ferrante thought that nothing much would get done with Labor Day and Admission Day holidays cutting into the second week of school, and suggested that week be set for the opening date and be given over to registration.

Superintendent Otto Bardarson urging that the earlier date gave more leeway for lost time in case the schools had to be closed dur-

Humor and Art In Dance Program

It is anticipated that the Sunset School Auditorium will be packed to capacity tonight when the curtain draws on the Cansino Spanish Dance program at eight-thirty o'clock. With their infallible, discriminating judgment, the Denny-Watrous Management has brought to the Monterey Peninsula the outstanding Spanish dance group on the Pacific Coast, which provides not only authentic, thrilling Spanish dancing by some of the greatest dancers, but abundance of humor and comedy as well, with variety and brilliant staging.

The Company includes Jose Cansino, famed dancer of the Madrid Cansinos, who has designed the costumes from the Estaban collection at the Madrid Opera House; Carmen Morales, whose varied career has made her a feature dancer in Rio de Janeiro, Paris, Buenos Aires; Lolita Lopez, who recently scored a big hit at the Curran Theatre in San Francisco and in the Los Angeles Phil-

THE DAY OF THE STEELHEAD RUN

Eighteen years ago Carmel bought a fire engine. It was Carmel's first real fire engine, and the town stood around admiring it—proud—a little doubtful, for then, as now, $7,000 was a lot of money, and maybe the chemical cart was good enough, the one the volunteers pulled by hand. It had served well enough to date. Maybe they'd been extravagant. Maybe they'd let red paint and shining metal dazzle their judgment as well as their eyes—maybe—

But two days is long enough to admire and wonder. There was a steelhead run down at the bar. On the Third Day the town went fishing.

And that was the day the back of the bakery in the Schweninger Building on Ocean Avenue caught on fire. Nobody noticed it while it was a small blaze, easily controlled. Not until the whole rear of the building was roaring in flames was anyone aware that this was IT—the FIRE CARMEL HAD ALWAYS FEARED—the fire that would sweep the town while the town fought futilely with its hand-drawn hose cart.

Then the Volunteers arrived with the NEW fire engine that most of the citizens in the excitement of the moment had forgotten they owned, and it put out the fire that would have raked the town had it occurred four days sooner.

Carmel no longer doubted its wisdom. $7,000 was cheap. Twice $7,000 would have been cheap. The new Luverne had paid for itself three days after its purchase, and Carmel had learned a lesson. NEVER AGAIN WOULD THE TOWN WEIGH DOLLARS AGAINST FIRE PROTECTION.

Carmel grew. It crawled higher up the hillside, and the Luverne, a middle westerner, was not made for climbing. Moreover, with increased building an auxiliary engine was needed. In 1930, the citizens voted a $10,000 bond issue, bought the Mack, that is now No. 1 Engine, and retired the Luverne to the position of auxiliary.

But the Luverne had served its day even then. At the tragic fire that destroyed the Golden Bough Theatre in 1935 the Luverne broke down when it was most needed to support the Mack.

The Mack and the Luverne are seven years older now. The Mack is still a good truck, almost as good a truck as when the Golden Bough burned but the Luverne is no good at all.

The Fire Department wants a new truck to take the place of the Mack, so it can retire the Mack to Auxiliary duty. Tuesday it is asking the citizens of Carmel to vote a $10,000 bond issue so it can buy that new truck.

It is hardly posible those bonds will fail in passing unless Carmel has forgotten the lesson of the Day of the Steelhead Run in '24, the lesson that should be grooved into the consciousness of every dweller in this resin-soaked pine forest that is home:

NEVER WEIGH DOLLARS AGAINST FIRE PROTECTION.

Civilian Defense House to House Inspection Starts

This week Civilian Defense Block Wardens are visiting the homes of the people for whom they are responsible, checking on the householders' preparation for emergency, and instructing them in CD regulations.

Attics, clear of fire hazards, and the possession of proper fire fighting equipment will be noted by the wardens.

Those households passing muster will receive preparedness stickers to be placed in the window.

Shoulder Up Heave Ho

By WILMA COOK

Fire Commissioner Fred McIndoe's voice came over the telephone:

"Is there a Pine Cone representative that would like a ride on the fire engine? We are going to—"

I was down at the firehouse before the phone had a chance to cool off. It was seven-thirty at night and the place was full of people. Every volunteer and auxiliary fireman in the department was on hand, in a canvass coat and the women of the Motor Corps in their trim uniforms in a cluster around the ambulance. It was the night of the big CD work-out.

Up in the control room at the city hall the girls were at their telephones waiting for the calls to start coming in from block wardens, messenger boys on the alert, waiting to carry the phone girls' reports to the executives at the council table who would decide what assistance was to be sent out, women at the big boards to chart and record the "disasters."

Back at the firehouse I was standing on the running board of the Luverne so that when the alarm sounded, I wouldn't be lost in the shuffle. I had a chance to ride on a fire engine and it wasn't going to get away without me.

Over the leather driver's seat I could see the Mack, its red paint and metal trim shined up to distraction. The Luverne had had a polishing too, and looked splendid, a little old-fashioned in line, but just as bright and exciting as the Mack.

"The Luverne is somewhat older than the Mack, isn't it?"

"Somewhat," observed Paul Funchess, captain of the Luverne crew. "Two more years and it will be old enough to vote. This," he added, "is the second fire engine of this make to be sold this side of the Rocky Mountains."

"But it still runs?"

"Yes," said Funchess. "It still runs."

Then the alarm came in. An incendiary had hit the second house from the south-east corner of First and Dolores. I slid into the seat beside the driver. David Machado stepped on the starter. Bob Erickson, John Weigold, Harry Hilbert, Jimmy Kelsey, Carl Rasmussen and Funchess grabbed onto the Luverne and out of the firehouse we rolled with all the authentic fire-engine noises.

We had to take it easy around the corner, but once on Dolores, we could get up speed. Pretty

All the dogs in town are urging their masters and mistresses to trot down to the polls on August 18th and put a big pawprint opposite the "YES" on the Fire Engine Bond Election ballot. The dogs want a nice, big, shining, modern fire engine to chase instead of that old 1924 relic that is holding down the job at present. They firmly believe that fires should be short and sweet — the alarm should sound, the canine fire-chasers drop everything they are doing at the mement and rush to the firehouse, the big, powerful, new engine should roar out, siren wailing, and they all go pell mell to the fire which the new engine and equipment would put out in a very few minutes, and then they all could rush back to the firehouse and back to whatever important business they were doing before the alarm sounded. Most of the dogs are too busy now with their war work and such, to waste much time waiting around for that huffing puffing old engine to put the fires out. They want speed, action, and effectiveness — they want that new engine!

DANNY Keel-Brooks left his heart in Hatton Fields when he went back to San Mateo after a short visit here. He left his heart with a girl named GYPSY McClure. The handsome DANNY had been more or less of a woman-hater until he met the blonde and dark-eyed GYPSY. Some of the loveliest debutantes of San Mateo and Burlingame had tried their best to make an impression on the maddeningly indifferent DANNY, but to no avail. Then one evening his mistresses, Mrs. Kathleen Brooks and Miss Margurite Keel, took him to call on Mr. and Mrs. G. G. McClure, and GYPSY and her dashing brother, CAPTAIN. When DANNY and GYPSY first looked into each others' eyes, that certain something clicked that makes two people fall in love — and a beautiful romance was born. But DANNY had to go back to San Mateo —and now GYPSY is finding consolation in her old beau, CONGO Kraft, who lives across the street.

That lovely golden-blonde with the dark, slanting eyes, seen here and there with [illegible] Arthur Harber is PERKY Harber, whose exotic beauty is due to her colorful ancestry. It goes way back to PERKY'S grandmother. Grandma's people were nice, simple, conservative ranchers, Shepherds, to be exact. But Grandma was a high-spirited adventurous girl, bored by the quiet ranch life. One moonlit night she eloped with a handsome coyote. They had a daughter, PERKY'S mother. Mother inherited Grandma's adventurous spirit and so instead of seeking a husband of her own set, she married an Oiental, a striking red Chow. And their daughter, PERKY, was graced with the best features of the entire family. From her great-grand parents, she inherited her sweetness and simplicity; from her grandfather, her strange, melodious voice her love of lonely moonlight nights, and her unusual slanting eyes; from her father her goregous coat; and from all the women in her family, that exciting spirit of adventure.

Bob Hope and Madeleine Caroll In Gay Comedy

Madeleine Carroll, the most beautiful blonde of them all, has had her cool and lovely aloofness kicked out of her — and by none other than her most vociferous admirer, Bob Hope. It happens in "My Favorite Blonde" the hilarious comedy at the Carmel theatre Sunday through Tuesday.

The double bill for Wednesday and Thursday is "Larceny, Inc." starring Edward G. Robinson with Jane Wyman, Broderick Crawford and Jack Carson in the supporting roles. The picture tells the story of a man who finds that running a regular business enterprise was more profitable than cracking safes. Also playing is, "Keep 'Em Laughing" with Jack Benny.

The Friday and Saturday features are the dramatic dynamite blending with the music made by Freddie Martin and his famous orchestra makes for smashing melodrama in "The Mayor of 44th Street." Here is a sensational story of juvenile saboteurs in one of the most unique shakedown rackets ever to be publicly aired.

The companion film is "Dangerously They Live." This film tells the story of a pair of young Americans who foil the plot of an enemy spy ring and thus save a whole fleet of ships bound for Britain, from destruction by enemy submarines. This week the Kiddie Club Matinee features those noted Carmel teen-age girls, the Sullivan Sisters, and Jack Lindsey at the piano.

Eberman Goes South, Scoville Returns to Column

Arriving with a poem by Willis Eberman which heads the Pine Cone Poetry Column of this issue is the information that Eberman has left the Oregon country, long a locale of his work, to write in Hollywood.

The move constitutes something of an upheaval for Eberman since he is a native Oregonian whose roots are deep in the north country soil.

His grandfather, Ninion Eberman, led a scouting party into Oregon in 1843, and took up land around Seaside, Oregon, land that has since served as the source from which Willis Eberman has drawn material for much of his narrative poetry. At present he is working on a novel in verse with its setting in southern California.

Katherine Scoville, whose verse, Long's Peak also appears in this issue, writes that her silence since she won first prize in the Second Pine Cone Poetry Contest, is due to a long illness.

Water Color Show At Sketch Box Is Lively In Spirit

By JAMES FITZGERALD

The water color show at the Sketch Box Gallery by Lucille Burtis which closes today, consists of lively pictures for the most part. They represent very well one of the various attitudes of the present time in American painting.

Those who go to galleries with preconceived set notions of what a picture should be; and these folk generally look for evidences of hard work, may easily think the best of these things glib and facile. Those who know a little more, and especially those who have used this medium themselves, will know that much thought and direct purpose went into these simplified statements.

The less said about good painting and good music the better. All one can properly say about a show of pictures is not much. Enthusiasm calls for a few remarks, however, to let people know a good show is on.

What Man For Our Congress?

IN AUG. 25TH PRIMARIES

After a careful study of all Congressional candidates, George Outland of Santa Barbara was chosen by the Monterey Peninsula Non-Partisan Group as best qualified to serve voters of farm, town and city of our new 11th District. Outland is a "new broom." There is no incumbent in office.

Outland is an authority in Government and International Relations. That is his life work. He could not vote ignorantly. He also knows the problems of the farm, that backbone of California. He was brought up on a Ventura County ranch.

Outland knows the good and bad of city rule, for he spent 7 years in social service work. Age, 36. Big of body and voice he commands attention. Big of mind and spirit he wins respect. Likeable, honest, fearless and informed.

For your information, the chairman of the Men's Non-Partisan group is a Willkie Republican, and the leader of the women is a Democrat. It is the sincere hope of this group (with no political ax to grind) that big men like Outland may soon take the place of the little men of Congress who let our country down with a total of 1811 NO votes against the famous "10 war mesaures" when America was on the brink of world conflict. A vote for Outland is a contribution to our war effort.

This Year's Shakespeare Is Greatly Improved

By ELIZABETH PAINE

In the woodsy quiet of the Forest Theater, Herbert Heron presented "Julius Caesar" last week-end under war conditions which, paradoxically, seemed to improve Forest Theater Shakespeare.

Because of the dim-out restrictions the performance was given at twilight—long an attractive time—and because of the twilight "Juluis Caesar" was streamlined to an hour and a half which is just the right length for an out door production.

A Real Success

The ultimate, one - and - only proof of the success of this first hall of the summer Shakespeare Festival was to be seen in the size of the audiences. They picked up steadily. By Sunday night, there was twice the audience of the Friday opening.

To praise the advantageous conditions is not, however, to lessen the credit due the players. The cast was notably sincere and by no means untalented. Noel Sullivan as Brutus, W. B. Williams as Caesar, Warren Keith Thomas as Cassius and Barbara Stitt as Portia, Bert Heron as Mark Antony, were splendid.

They played with deep feeling and lent a fine dignity to the performance.

Good Characterizations

Subordinate parts were nicely characterized by Milton Stitt (Casca), Robert Anderson (Decius), Wilma Bott (Calpurnia), Cecil "Pop" Smith (soothsayer), Michael Abbott (Metellus), Alec Gibson (Cinna), Cecil Haskell (Trebonius), Hal Bernard (Artemidorous), Fred Robbins (cobbler), while small Eric Short as Lucius was charming to look at in his turquoise costume and sprightly in action and clear and understanding in his lines. Maxine Chevalier, the messenger, Servius, shone in her brief speech to Brutus. Edward G. Kuster is to be congratulated not only on his one bright line as Popilius but also for helping out with war-time casting problems by coming into another's production.

Helena Heron's costumes were beautiful, handsomely draped, brilliantly colored with unusual and pleasing combinations, such as the red and black of Portia, the red-violet of the soothsayer and the turquoise of Lucius. They proved most effective against the pine-banked stage and the tastefully curved, chartreuse columns.

The next Festival play, "Twelfth Night," will be presented week-end after this, Aug. 21-23, and it likewise will be streamlined and given at twilight.

Free One-Man Shows New Gallery Policy

A special meeting of the directors of the Carmel Art Association Monday voted to begin a new policy: the holding of one man shows at the gallery without charge to the artist.

A decision was also reached to conduct national advertising of the gallery, for which Mrs. Rama Stearns and Frederic Burt each volunteered to give $50.

John O'Shea was charged with preparing the patio for exhibitions of sculpture.

President Myron Oliver reported on the half year's achievements, such as the new fluorescent lighting, and a new board was elected. Those chosen were Burton S. Boundey, Ferdinand Burdorff, Nora Nichols Grabill, Arthur Hill Gilbert, Armin Hansen, Mrs. Margaret Levick, John O'Shea, Myron Oliver, E. H. Price, William Ritschel, William Watts, Abel G. French Invest in Art Instead of Bonds, Schempp Says

One example of how the people are meeting their investment problems in occupied France was cited by Theodore Schemp, art dealer who brought the French Moderns Exhibit, sponsored by the Carmel Art Institute, to the Del Monte Gallery this week end.

Uncertain as to the fate of the franc and the value of securities, the French are putting their money in paintings as an investment, choosing most frequently examples of the French Modern school feeling that the works of that period will increase in popularity and value as time goes on, Schempp, himself a recent inhabitant of Paris, said.

After the close of the successful three day show at Del Monte, he returned to Los Angeles, but he will be back shortly with Mrs. Schemp for a three weeks' vacation here.

Mrs. J. S. Clark's Carmel Friends Learn of Passing

The many friends of Mrs. John Sinclair Clark, a member of the Church of the Wayfarer of Carmel, and mother of Mrs. Z. L. Potter of La Loma Terrace, Carmel, will be grieved to learn of her death in San Francisco, on August 9, after several months' illness.

The former Harriet Benton, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. William A. Benton, missionaries to Syria, she was born in B'Hamdun, Mt. Lebanon, Syria, near Beirut. She came to this country when she was eight years old, and received her grammar school and high school education in Cambridge, Mass.

Going to Minneapolis later to join her brother, Prof. Charles W. Benton of the Department of Romance Languages of the University of Minnesota, she studied at that university. On June 11th, 1883, she married Prof. John Sinclair Clark of Minneapolis. Prof. Clark was for thirty years professor of Latin at the University of Minnesota.

Mrs. Clark took an active part in church and missionary work wherever she was. In Andrew Presbyterian church in Minneapolis she was for many years teacher of a large co-educational Sunday School class, and was for a time on the Presbyterian Mission Board of the Northwest.

She had traveled widely both in this country and Europe. After her husband's death she made her home for several years with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Williams, then living in France. In 1940 she came to Carmel, with Mr. and Mrs. Potter.

She is survived by a sister, Dr. Mary L. Benton of Oakland, well-known in Carmel; three daughters, Miriam Clark Potter (Mrs. Z. L. Potter) of Carmel, Margaret Clark Williams (Mrs. Howard D. Williams) of Bronxville, New York, Beatrice Clark Brown (Mrs. Percy B. Brown) of Birmingham, England. She is also survived by seven grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Her pastor, Dr. James E. Crowther of the Church of the Wayfarer, conducted the funeral service Tuesday afternoon in San Francisco.

Shoulder Up And Heave Ho

soon we were tearing along at fifteen miles an hour! I held my hat. People on the sidewalk grinned and waved. Hooray!

Then we headed up the "dip" between Third and Second. We started to lose speed. Machado shifted. The old Luverne engine let out a growl and dug in — slower—harder—slower — harder —grrrrrr — then phut! The crew rolled off the engine like bugs out of a basket, shouldered up and pushed. Heave—ho. No soap.

"We'll take another run at it," said Funchess.

Everybody back on board. Business of rolling down hill in reverse. Business of taking another run at it. Off again — shoulder up — heave ho —

"We'll have to go around" said Funchess.

"Why didn't you go around in the first place?" I wanted to know.

"You'll see," said Machado.

We went along Third a block to Lincoln and then up Lincoln and around to Second. Not so steep as the dip but a long slow grind at a foot pace, and toward the top, doubts if the Luverne would be able to drag its ancient red body up over the final hump.

We arrived at the "disaster" 15 minutes after we had left the firehouse, a distance of six blocks. The house where the incendiary had hit had burned to the ground while we were trying to push the Luverne up the dip. Now the house on its right was going up in flames, and the blaze had caught the pine trees which were roaring like a torch.

"Why don't you bring the Mack?" I demanded, viewing the imaginary destruction. "You knew darn well this Luverne wouldn't be able to climb up anywhere in this district fast enough to do any good."

"The Mack," said Funchess, "is putting out three incendiaries at the High School. Do you have a picture of this Luverne going up Ocean Avenue hill?"

"Do you often have to push this big beetle around?"

"We do unless we're going down hill," said Funchess. "And we don't complain except when there's monkey business like Paul Flanders. Dave remembers—"

"Paul Flanders lives up in the south east corner of the city limits across the gulch," said Machado. "He had a party on. He bet $50 the Luverne wouldn't make the hill up to his place, and he turned in the alarm.

"We didn't know what it was all about and we pushed the Luverne all the way up, and when we got there he said, 'I lose' and tried to pass out drinks."

"Did you have one?"

"We did not. We came back downtown and had him arrested for turning in a false alarm, and the judge fined him $25. Pushing the Luverne up hill is no joke."

Editor's note: The persons and places in this account are NOT imaginary, nor are any of the occurrences with the exception of the "disasters" which might have been—which still MIGHT BE.

protection of our town.

The Bond issue of $10,000, if it is passed, will actually add only 3 cents to each $100 of the present tax bill, and will be paid for in ten years, whereas a new Fire Engine is good for at least twenty years. A town the size of Carmel, which is a city of the sixth class, is allowed by law, a bonded indebtedness up to $66,000. At present Carmel's bonded indebtedness amounts to only $9000. We also have a bond on the present Mack fire truck which expires in about two years time.

I am sure if the people of this community know the true circumstances in regard to our fire equipment, they will not fail to get out and vote "YES" at the election on Tuesday, August 18th.

The women of the Fire Department Auxiliary are arranging for free transportation to the polls for anyone who wishes it. Just call 158.

Sincerely yours,
Cedric Rowntree.

—VOTE YES TUESDAY—

To the Editor of the Pine Cone:

Our Faithful Firemen have brought to our notice, the need for a new Fire Engine. I have such confidence in them, I would not question their statement. Further, they are not requesting this expenditure for themselves, but for the protection of our life and property.

There are 1783 registered voters. I trust that many of them will go to the polls on Tuesday, August 18th, and VOTE YES.

Saidee Van Brower,
City Clerk of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea

—VOTE YES TUESDAY—

To The Editor:

The world now seems to revolve around the word "protection." Let us all go to the polls on Aug. 18 and vote YES on the measure giving the fire department another engine—or I should say—giving a new fire engine to ourselves. If we don't do it now, it may be too late to do it later on.

George E. Gallagher.

—VOTE YES TUESDAY—

To the Editor:

As a property owner I feel that a small increase in taxes is well worth the added protection. The new fire engine is really needed and I urge the citizens to vote for the bond issue. It is to their own interests to protect their own property.

Harold Neilsen.

$666 Made On Thrift Sale

By M. V. B. McADAM

The Bundles for Bluejackets Thrift Sale closed its doors on Saturday, at the end of a two day red - letter show that is a credit to the organization and Carmel's generosity.

Mrs. J. W. Murphy, Chairman of Bundles for Bluejackets and General Manager of the Thrift Sale, was radiant as she looked over the counters stripped of all the wonderful donations which had so lavishly been given and had made the great success.

Mrs. F. W. Ten Winkel, Chairman of General sales, gave all the credit to her assistant, who numbered 28, serving in the many departments of merchandise, and at the tables of jewelry, antiques, flowers, works of art, refreshments, Victory vegetables, and the punch bowl, who worked untiringly and co-operatively.

There were so many donations of cakes, cookies, candy, jellies and other food, the tables were groaning, yet they had to be replenished again and again.

Mrs. Charles Rayne and Mrs. Frazier Hancock's Victory vegetable donations were a great credit to housewives' resourcefulness and sold like hot cakes. Mrs. M. J. Peterson's mysterious fruit punch, Spanish beans and Swedish cake, disappeared so suddenly she had to make another supply for Saturday's sale.

The flower booth was the center of attraction. Crowds surrounding it continuously, buying made-up baskets of exquisite designs, beautiful bouquets of red, white and blue small flowers, rare cut flowers and potted plants. All made a gorgeous display which was sponsored by Miss Flora Hartwell and Miss Frances Hartwell. They realized more than $95.00. Mrs. W. H. Pulliam, supervising the jewelry, made a $75.00 record on sales.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rayne donated a fine painting in oils of the old Parliament House in Wales, by William Ellis, which is valued at $250.00 and is being raffled. It is now on exhibit at Der Ling's Oriental shop.

Mrs. Arthur Webb's donation of a beautiful Afghan, valued at $35.00 was raffled at the close of the Thrift Sale and won by Mrs. John Grant of Cleveland, who was visiting Carmel. Her son is stationed at Fort Ord.

The Bundles for Bluejackets sales for two days amounted to $666.

The Bluejackets Organization is deeply grateful to all who have been so generous with their donations and assisted in making the Thrift Sale such a great success. For their splendid co-operation, special credit is given to Robert Leidig for the use of his store for their show room; Wade Etter of the Carmel Furniture House; Ellen Habernicht, easels; M. V. B. McAdam for paintings and M. J. Murphy, lumber.

Local Landmark, Fraser Looms, To Close Doors

The last of the Carmel handicraft shops, Fraser Looms, is going out of business.

Since 1928 Carmel visitors have paused before the plate glass windows in the corner shop of the Seven Arts Court to watch the weavers at the looms working bright yarns into lovely patterns for hand woven garments for women, reproducing with heart - warming accuracy the Scotch plaids in ties for the men.

Most of the visitors stopped in, from Jack Oakie who never failed in his habitual greeting, "Hi-ya-Babe!" to Raja Gopal and Jeddu Krishnamurti.

Sir Henry Duff Cooper carried away a booty of Fraser - woven ties when he ended his visit in Carmel. The Lindberghs were almost daily callers during their stay here, going to the shop in the early morning before many people were up and about.

"We can get the yarn, but we can't get the colors—that's fatal to weaving, is Mrs. Fraser's reason for closing a shop that started out a hobby and became a landmark.

Mrs. Fraser learned to weave for amusement as a child. Later, seeing the loom in the first Carmel weaving shop, she became interested, got a loom of her own and took up weaving as a hobby at home. When the weaving shop closed, Mrs. Fraser started Fraser Looms in one of the smaller shops of the Seven Arts Court. As demand for her work increased, she moved to the corner shop where her looms and her weaving girls soon became one of the points of interest on Ocean Avenue.

Mrs. Fraser's plans are indefinite. She will sell two of her looms, the third she will take home to use for hobby weaving. After the war, perhaps she will reopen Fraser Looms, but for present—

"We can't get the colors."

Jay Tuthill Starts New Nursery School

"Learning Through Living" is the motto for the new Blue Jay Nursery School being formed by Jay Tuthill, who specializes in Nursery, Kindergarten and First Grade training for boys and girls. The opening date is set for August thirty-first.

Realizing that the training and instruction during the first few years of a child's life is more important than all other time he may spend in school, Jay is planning her work to meet the need and develop the best possibility of each individual child enrolled.

Children want to know the what, where and why of everything from bugs to stars. Here, in a sunny and sparkling atmosphere, the child will spend many happy hours learning and growing.

Play clothes will be the rule of the day here; for part of the program of the Blue Jay Nursery School will be exploring nature; discovering things for themselves; unobtrusively observed by a teacher who understands and loves children.

Jay has had a wealth of experience in this field, having taught the first grade at Sunset four years, primary at Douglas five years and kindergarten in Monterey for the last year. She received her degree in Primary Education at San Jose State College, and will have two assistants well qualified in this field.

CABBAGES AND THINGS

By PLANTSMITH

After last week's diversion in setting down a list of Carmel's own very unique cottage names I feel it expedient to get back into the garden again. Especially so since Phil Nesbitt wrote a piece in the same issue about gophers, fuchsias and bugs.

A recent visitor, remarking on the variety of vegetables in my little garden, ventured the guess there must be twenty-five different sorts. I had not kept track of the plantings but a checkup revealed there were twenty-eight different types. This includes several that I list mentally as "can't" crops.

When anyone says "it cawn't be done" (or maybe it "it can't be did") I proceed at once to procure the taboo seeds or plants and start a new test. To justify the heading of this column I'll mention cabbage first. There was even a double "can't" hanging over the head of this humble member of the mustard family. You CAN'T grow it in Carmel, and you CAN'T grow it in the summer time. Well, I'm paying for the chance to say "I told you so" by learning how many ways cabbage can be served. I have the feeling that by the summer's end I CAN'T look a cabbage head in the face. There's just one mitigating factor in favor of the cabbage — or shall I say in my favor? In selecting the seed for my cabbage patch I chose the smallest type available. Full grown, they are about as large as a baseball-and-a-half and just about as solid. Tender and sweet, too.

The head gardener at the Plantsmith diggings noticed beet seed in my collection last spring. She was surprised at my ignorance. Anyone knows you can't grow beets past the "greens" stage in Carmel. So I planted a row of beets. Watered, weeded, hoed and fed them. First they yielded tasty dishes of greens. Then boiled—or cooked, or however beets are fixed. Even now, fully grown, one single beet makes a husky serving for the family, and beets are definitely on the "can" side of the list.

This "can't" gardening spills over the edge of the grub section and into the flower beds as well. I hear over and over "it just doesn't pay to plant zinnias." So I bought a few dozen zinnia plants last May. For the past month or more two large vases are required to care for the continuing crop of flowers. One blossom seemed incredibly large so I got out the yardstick and found it had a wingspread of five and a quarter inches. (The zinnia, not the yardstick). Another "can" for next year's garden.

Space will not permit a full listing of this particular sort of gardening but I must mention one plant that looks suspiciously like a watermelon vine growing in a lard tub. I didn't plant it myself, and had warned the family never, never to plant a watermelon seed in Carmel. Now I wonder. Has someone else in this family been bitten by the "can't" bug?

Perhaps some of you folks have noticed the "E" sticker on the windshield of my spray truck. That means I'm signed up as a one-man auxiliary fire department in Civilian Defense. Recent practice air raid drills, however, reveal a woeful inadequacy in Carmel's present total fire-fighting equipment (including my bug squirter).

With the thought that a "yes" vote Tuesday on the Fire Truck Bond issue might easily be the equivalent of an extra 'way-below-cost fire insurance policy I suggest that you so vote. The "can't" bug may be harmless in a garden — but a "can't-happen-here" bug could be highly destructive in a major air raid.

POETRY

POEM

(The white rose buds with thorns
upon its stem,
All the more precious and more
dear for them.)
Christina Rosetti.

I could not have the bloom without the sting
Of many thorns, but have the bloom I must:
Though my hand hurt, my heart's made happier,
And soon forgets the pain — How lovely this Pale smouldering blossom underneath the moons:
As soft as water cupped within the hand,
Light as a wing — Were there as many thorns
Upon your stalk as there are stars in heaven,
I would take hold and pluck you once again.

—WILLIS EBERMAN.

LONG'S PEAK

High mountain of my youth,
Holy mountain with proud head,
That lit the heady passes of the past,
Shadow yourself, darken your shining sides—
Cover your pride, pull down your floating scarves of mist
That fringe the icy cliffs!

All things go covered now,
All spires of silver or of snow,
All pinnacles that push against the sky
And point the way for wings!
So guard your towered height,
High hill, high hallowed hill,
Until we breathe again!

—KATHRYNE E. SCOVILLE.

THIS TOO WAS APRIL

We shall remember in the far away,
These blossomed showers of rain that fell today,
Where carpets of pearl white and jade green moss
Are blasted at our feet in bitter loss;
Now April's heartbeat is the cannon's roar,
And pale young saplings of the sycamore
Lie green and broken, in the early heat
Of evenings that were once deep-cool and sweet.

This too was April; now the hovered wing
Of grief has fallen on each quivering blade;
But soon again the gray dawn skies shall sing
A newer song above the purpled shade,
As bursting throats of nightingales are trilled—
The voice of April never can be stilled.

REVIEWS

OF MEN AND BEASTS

By PHIL NESBITT

Someone the other day mentioned to me that he had seen a large bluejay flying off in panic. Wondering much, the observer followed and peered closely at the curious spectacle. Bluejays, you know, are the bad boys of the avian airlanes. Nothing less than a hawk would likely frighten the boys in blue. Now, reader, it is a rather startling fact; the observer saw a mite of a humming bird in hot pursuit of the frightened bluejay.

Of late the animal world has been living quietly in semi-retirement. The quail in the garden are developing in fashion of barnyard fowl. They come clucking into the recently seeded area and snuggle deep into the warm dry dust, exactly as if they were proverbial fat hens.

Carmel's fog is a spiritual boon. All one is obliged to do when cursing the fog is think of the dry desiccating heat of the San Joaquin Valley. Thank God for the fog. But fog isn't rain. Rain MIGHT put out an uncontrollable forest fire, or roof fire, or such. From all I can gather, Carmel village really needs a new fire engine. I can see the actualities of the thing that has never yet happened, happening. A fire which might start at the foot of Ocean Avenue, and, fanned by the eternal sea breezes, sweep up the hill, dispatching as it travels, all the lovely and varied estates and homes which decorate that lush, dry-needled hillside. Apparently, the vital engine, the Pumper, was purchased a long eighteen years back. Style in women's clothing has experienced a complete revolution since those remote days. They were doing the 'Black Bottom.' Just in case a fire should be started, incendiary bombs not excluded, it might be a good thing for Carmel to invest in a pumper engine which is more or less certain to keep on pumping in the event of necessity. 'Member Pearl Harbor? How the Yanks were caught napping?

The great outer world beyond Carmel, composed of tourists, wayfarers, travelers, summer time visitors and interested promoters, etc., has always levied a plaint against the village, namely, "What peculiar characters there are in Carmel." It occurs that they might be wrong. It is quite true that there are a number of amazing beings to be viewed upon the local scene. There are those two persons who look exactly like their own pet bulldog. There was that Swedish gentleman with wavy beard and bushy hair, there are the ladies who wear pants and the typical village dwellers who progress up and down the streets, looking quite as if they had been snatched bodily from the quaint quaintness of some dowdy little village in Cornwall; however, it happens that the people from the outside who complain, are even funnier than the local inhabitants.

I was told the other day of an 'outsider' who went into a shop and asked for their best steel scissors. He was handed a pair. Immediately he went to a mirror and began to trim the mustache which graced his pendulous upper lip. When he'd finished, he handed the scissors back to the proprietor with a mere nod of the head. Now, reader, was this not a queer person? I think also of that boundless being, a man named Riccardi, I think it was, who came to the village and 'took' on a credit basis, many of our conservative business men, including the affable and courteous Frank Murphy.

This last named incident was speedily forgotten by all concerned. Riccardi, by the way, was just released from durance unspeakable, and by way of complimenting the indifferent world, gave a swell party for his loyal friends, a sort of 'coming out again' party. Not all the queer people in the world are in Carmel.

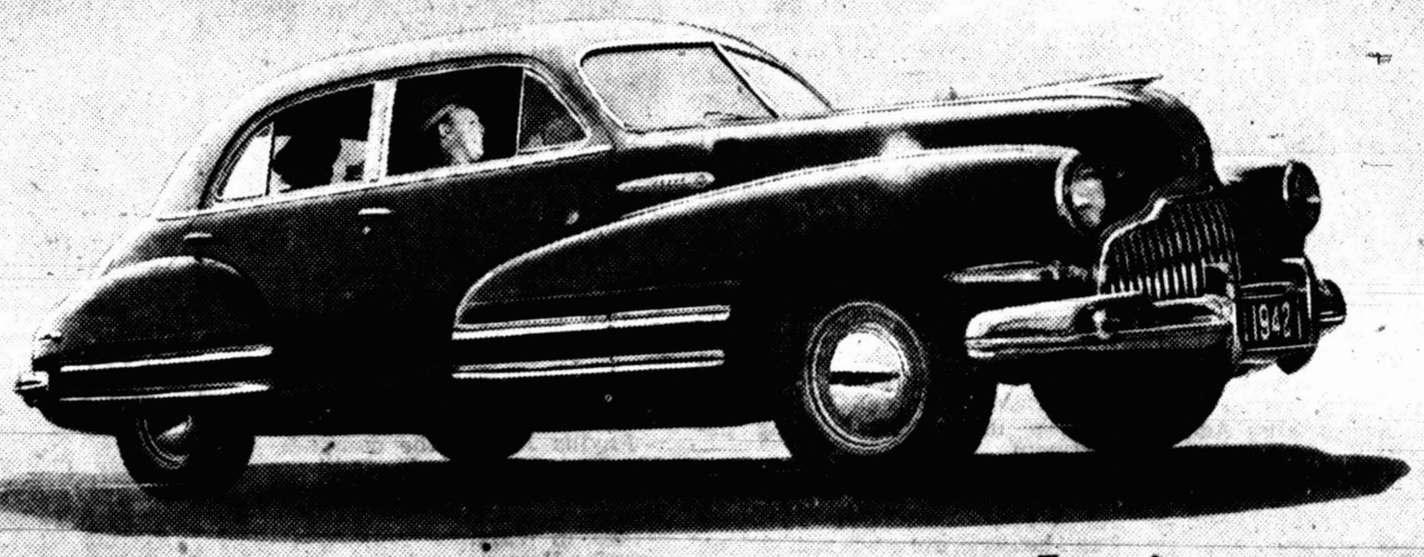
Got the need?



We've got the cars!

Rationing Rules were not Meant to Prevent Replacement of Cars which are Really Needed. It Sometimes Helps More to Replace that Old Car than to Try to Keep it Running

CONSIDER the reasons for present rules and regulations governing the purchase of new cars.

They were not meant to handicap owners whose cars fill necessary purposes. Nor to keep cars on the road beyond the point of safety or efficient operation. Nor to stop the normal process whereby cars pass from owner to owner and thence out of service to become much-needed scrap metal.

They were simply meant to see that cars now built and ready for sale got into the hands of those who needed them — as their needs demanded.

If your car serves a really necessary purpose, Buick dealers are prepared to make immediate delivery on brand-new, gas-thrifty, dependable new models built for the purpose of seeing you through the duration.

With such a car, you travel safely, make best use of gasoline and oil, start fresh with brand-new tires on wheels designed to get maximum life from them. For dependable performance of necessary jobs, such a car is frequently far more of an asset to the country than one which has passed its prime.

Why not drop in on your Buick dealer and talk over all details of the whole situation?

Are you included in this list?

ARE YOU directly or indirectly engaged in the production of war materials or the prosecution of the war?

ARE YOU a physician, surgeon, nurse, veterinarian, clergyman or farmer?

DO YOU use your car in public service, such as fire or police, public health, highway maintenance work or the like?

ARE YOU owner of a taxicab or other vital means of public transportation?

ARE YOU a newspaper wholesaler, or a salesman in essential fields connected with war work?

THESE ARE the broad groups who are eligible under present rationing rules to buy new automobiles. There are other details of eligibility, of course, but if you are included in the above, it will pay you to see your Buick dealer now and get full information. Get the facts before you assume either that you can't or shouldn't buy a new car now!

If you're eligible to buy—

Better Buy Buick!

Carmel Views New Red Cross Quarters At Open House Tea

By S. L. CORY

Carmel Red Cross's new home was opened by an informal tea Saturday, August 8th when the Board of Directors issued an invitation to the people of Carmel to come and view their new Chapter House.

Every Unit of the chapter was represented: At the door to welcome the guests and give information was Mrs. Kit Whitman, chairman of staff assistants. Mrs. C. F. H. Jarvis, vice chairman of Volunteer Service, ably took the place of Mrs. W. H. Hargrave who is now in Vancouver.

In the Production Room, Miss Jane Burritt, chairman, and Mrs. John Dickinson, former chairman, had their corps working. Miss Merry was working as she always is, day in and day out. Also in the production room were two representatives of the Carmel Valley branch of the Carmel Chapter making surgical dressings.

There were 115 visitors to the Home Service Branch where Mrs. Ernest Morehouse is carrying on until September 1st, when Miss P. Leslie King returns as executive secretary. However, Miss King was among the visitors. No one missed seeing Mrs. Fred Locke's interesting clothing department.

Dr. Taubles, chairman, was supposed to be in his attractive upstairs office but, as a matter of fact, he was everywhere showing people about.

The Staff Assistants' office was fully staffed and efficiently working.

The Nurses Aides had a completely equipped hospital room set up under the direction of Miss Kate Bier, chairman, and Mrs. Moira Brooks, vice-chairman.

The Motor Corps was represented by Mrs. Muriel V. Phelps and several of her assistants.

Colonel T. B. Tavlor, chairman of First Aid, and Colonel J. W. Stuart of the Disaster Relief Committe, gave their office for the first aid display which was under the direction of Mrs. Constance Low. The room was arranged as a first aid station and two uniformed first aiders were there to answer all questions.

The Canteen unit displayed for the first time its field trailer completely equipped to handle any disaster emergency. Tea was served by this group under the direction of Mrs. George Burton and her untiring corps of workers ably assisted by the Carmel Valley Canteen Aides. Cookies were donated by the many friends of Red Cross.

At the tea table were Mrs. Douglas Winslow, Mrs. G. F. Beardsley and Mrs. Sidney Trevvett. The Chapter House was gay with red, white and blue flowers from many gardens. Mrs. Mulvin and a group of workers spent many hours in making the buildings beautiful.

An honor guest was Mrs. Margaret Haines of Omaha, member of the National Committee of the American Red Cross, who generously added to the beauty of our rooms by sending red roses.

Another of the many visitors, Mrs. Rendtorff, former chairman of our chapter and a member of our executive board, who has not been present lately because of illness.

Recalls Edwin Booth's "Julius Caesar"

Among those who saw the initial performance of "Julius Caesar" in the Forest Theater last week-end was William E. Pulliam to whom it recalled boyhood days, long before the governor of Kentucky made him a colonel.

Mr. Pulliam acted in "Julius Caesar" with Edwin Booth.

That time in Louisville, the famous Booth played Brutus to a mob which had a southern accent and of this mob Mr. Pulliam was a part.

Pulliam Daughter Chosen To Illustrate Vogue Article

Phyllis Jervey, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Pulliam of Carmel, is the only woman selected for a portrait in the "Washington in Wartime" feature of the current Vogue.

Vivid wash sketches by Eric accompany Ben Crisler's article. There are pictures of the President, Col. William P. Donovan, etc. Mrs. Jervey, wife of Lieutenant Colonel William Wesson Jervey, is included because she heads the Washington A. W. V. State Senator McBride Here

State Senator J. J. McBride of Ventura was visiting friends and checking the political situation in Carmel last Friday. After serving Ventura county in the state legislature for ten years, four in the Assembly and six in the Senate, McBride is a candidate for congress at the August and November elections. He filed on the Democratic ballot.

"It goes without saying," said McBride, when he called at the Pine Cone Cymbal office, "that I am running on a 'win the war and win the peace' platform. We are all for that. In addition, I am convinced that I can apply what I have learned in ten years of state legislature service in the effective representation of this new 11th Congressional District in Washington."

Father Wrote War Cries; Mary Kern Carries On

Mary Root Kern of Carmel has written a rousing patriotic song, "Chins Up and Cheerio," which was sung recently by the Peninsula Male Chorus at Fort Ord. Vigorous applause greeted it and shouts for "Author!"

Mrs. Kern would seem to inherit the gift for composing patriotic rallying songs: her father, George F. Kern, wrote, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching."

He composed that in the days of the Civil War, and also, inspired by President Lincoln's second appeal for volunteers, wrote "The Battle Cry of Freedom."

Mrs. Kern recalls:

"A Confederate colonel after peace was declared, assured my father: 'Mr. Root if we had had your songs we'd have whipped you out of your boots.'

As her contribution towards inspiring a will to victory in the present war, Mrs. Kern has written both the words and music of "Chins Up and Cheerio." Rachel Morton has taken it to sing at patriotic concerts on her six weeks' tour of the East. This is the song:

CHINS UP AND CHEERIO
By Mary Root Kern

Chins up and cheerio!
Across the sea the echoes flow.
We send our ships.
We send our planes.
We pledge our faith where Freedom reigns.
A million men attend the call
With hearts united, brothers all.

Chins up and cheerio!
And every man is keen to go.
We've learned the trade,
We've ready made.
There's not a comrade can be stayed.
In sturdy faith that Right is might
We forge ahead to win the fight.

Before our eyes, a goal we see,
Our country's honor stainless, free.
We'll hold the field,
We'll never yield
Till held on high is Victory's shield.
Then join the song from sea to sea
The glorious song of Liberty!
Chins up, thumbs up, Cheerio!

"We miss Carmel, but after all we have Cowan if not Kuster," Frank Lloyd writes from Mill Valley.

Ross Cowan is only one of the Carmel people the Lloyds see there. At the shipyard in which Frank is working are Paul Taylor, Peggy Cluff, Gustav de Packh and Charles Foye, who used to play violin in the Bach Festival. Francis Whitaker is "dean" of a welding school in Mill Valley.

Alert Spectator Overwhelms Actors At Caesar Rehearsal

Even Shakespeare might have been gratified to see the reaction "Julius Caesar" provoked in one spectator at the dress rehearsal of the Forest Theater production.

This member of the udience was lifted out of his seat literally. He ran down, jumped on the stage and approached the players.

Each time Mark Antony (Bert Heron) mourned for Caesar or Brutus (Noel Sullivan) rationalized the murder or the mob called for Caesar, this enthusiastic spectator jumped with excitement.

Little did Seser, the brown and black spotted dog, suspect that the world had ever known another "Sesar" and that all the talk was of him. Sesar Alexander, nee Lloyd, might also have been surprised to learn that he was named for this Caesar and the only reason his name is spelled differently is because that's the way Skipper Lloyd spells it.

He pronounces it a little differently too, and that's more reason why Seser, who was adopted by Irene Alexander when the Frank Lloyds departed for Mill Valley, is written S-e-s-e-r.

Everybody Good This Week--Pretty Good

Carmel Police Department this week enjoyed the quietest seven days of the summer, opening doors for people who were locked out of garages, disconnecting horns that wouldn't stop blowing, and unwrapping a run-away car from the tree that had stopped its career.

The car belonged to a Filipino soldier, name unrecorded, who had parked on Seventh and Junipero. The brakes slipped, the car came to rest against a tree in a vacant lot, its radiator damaged.

Captain Lubersky of Stockton rubbed fenders with Corp. D. J. Rois of Fort Ord at Fourth and Mission. Matters were settled amicably.

That, with a few drunks which the police handled with the finesse of long experience, was the blotter for the week.

Know Your Plays? Kusters to Give Stamps to Winner

With "Elephant Boy" next Monday night the Playhouse management will offer something "new under the sun." There have been audience quiz contests on all sorts of subjects, notably a screen quiz entitled "So You Think You Know Music?" But the Kusters have thought up a new one, to be performed on the stage, not from the screen; they will call it "So You Think You Know Plays?" Every Monday night henceforth a scene will be acted, lasting ten minutes or so, from some play performed in Carmel during the past decade. The audience will be asked to identify the play and the author and to state, if possible, who played the scene in its original production on the Carmel stage. The prize will be a handful of Defense stamps and a refund of the admission paid by the winner and his or her party. The whole thing promises entertainment and plenty of fun—incidentally, Edward Kuster hopes that these dramatic cocktails will re-kindle Carmel's former interest in the stage and that eventually full length plays may again be ventured.

A new, non-war, non-propaganda British picture, filmed from H. G. Wells' novel, "Kipps," is on the Playhouse coming events list, as is: A one-night revival (the eighth in Carmel) of the world-famous "Elephant Boy," with Sabu at the age of nine; two nights of a haunting and dramatic Hollywood picture that was somehow passed over with slight attention by the commercial circuits but is being revived by the "art" houses everywhere—"Blues in the Night"; and lastly, Jimmy Stewart and the inimitable Rosalind Russell in the rollicking "No Time for Comedy." Days and dates will be found in the regular Playhouse notice in this issue.

Cast Does Good Work in "Jim" At First Theatre

"Big - Hearted Jim," or, "The Sheriff of Medicine Gulch" opened last night at the First Theatre, Monterey, to run this Saturday and Sunday nights, and Saturday and Sunday nights throughout this month and early September.

The Gold Coast Troupers, according to reports of last night's amazing performance, directed by Ronald Telfer, have surpassed themselves in this last melodrama of Indians, abductions, mock marriages and tense situations.

Talent abounds in all Gold Coast productions, and it is not lacking in the current play. Jean Humphrey, in the romantic lead of the victimized Dora, does a splendid piece of work, and Roland Sheffler as "Jim," tops everything he has done to date. Esther Gay, always the actress and in character, does a magnificent job as Liddy, with Darwin Law turning in an excellent Silas. Gail Johnson as Bess, whose mother died in an Indian massacre, will surprise everyone. Bob McMenamin, the Troupers' talented M. C., plays the "heavy," in the role of Heulette, Dora's betrayer. His accomplice is Paul Clemmensen, in the part of Pierre. Jim Jensen plays Sam.

The olio features the above talent and introduces a new Trouper in the person of Louise Doud, whose work in the olio establishes her as a valuable addition to the First Theatre personnel.

Rhoda Johnson's costumes, Franklin Dixon's sets, Bill France's lighting and the entire production, directed by Ronald Telfer, and under the Denny-Watrous Management, is professional in results, and ace entertainment. Anyone who wants to be amused, should not miss the First Theatre in California.

PROPER CARE OF YOUR APPLIANCES WILL SAVE WEAR

Clean your appliances frequently so that they will always be ship-shape for tip-top service. Remember when dirt and dust wear in, your appliances wear out. For example, empty the dust bag of your vacuum cleaner after each sweeping; clean out the crumbs in your toaster; wash the interior of your refrigerator after each defrosting; remove the soap scum and lint from your washer immediately after use and remove the dust film from lamp shades and fixtures. Do these simple little things regularly and your appliances will do more and last longer.

PROPER USE WILL SAVE REPAIR

Unintentional abuse of appliances leads to unnecessary repair or break down. Avoid letting your cleaner chew up nails or coins or hairpins. Be careful not to drop or jar appliances with heating elements. Do not overwork your washer by using too much water or overloading with too many clothes. Cook by accurate time and temperature control. Be careful to keep room temperatures down to the comfort level.

School Board Is Sad But Firm— August 31 Is It

ing the winter because of epidemic, finally convinced the board.

Bardarson's request for permission to order text books for a German language course brought surprised comment from some of the board members, since this will be the first year German will be taught in the high school. Mrs. G. A. Moller, new board member in the place of Major Shelburn Robison, supported Bardarson, pointing out that science students, if they didn't have German in high school would have to take if when they got to college if they wanted to go on in their specialty, as many of the advanced science reference books are in German.

A proposal to stain the new fences around the tennis courts to preserve them met with disapproval on the part of Hugh W. Comstock who believed they would harmonize more with the buildings if allowed to weather. As for preserving them, "Those fences are made out of redwood. They'll last longer than the board members," said Comstock.

The matter of an appropriation of a sum of money for the purchase of more shrubs for the high school was turned over to Harold Nielsen who was instructed to consult with Mrs. Todd as to how many plants and what sort would be best suited to the purpose.

The question of hiring a part-time bookkeeper to handle the detail of School District business and the retaining of Peter Mawdsley for consultation and budget control was reviewed, Mawdsley and Bardarson answering Ferrante's questioning. Though no official decision was reached, it was apparent the board favored the plan.

"It's a $133,000 a year business," Nielsen commented later referring to the need of the school board for clerical help. "The city of Carmel has only a $60,000 a year budget."

Among the communications was a denial of the federal works agency for permission of the school district to do any further building. Also, a letter from Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Walter E. Morgan, stating that the State did not favor the issuing of identification tags to children at the present moment, that if such action were taken, it would probably be handled by the Army. Bardarson was requested to inform the P. T. A. which had requested the inquiry.

It was decided to make up the $220 deficit of the High School cafeteria by borrowing from Sunset School cafeteria. Though there was some discussion as to the advisability of "farming out" the high school cafeteria, it was finally decided to allow the high school to continue with it for another year as it will be under new management, that of Mrs. Muriel Nevin, new home economics teacher who will divide her time between it and her domestic science classes.

REALLY GENTLEMEN

We can understand that the need of a new fire engine would loom pretty big in the minds of the city council, but my goodness—

County Clerk C. F. Joy, arranging with City Clerk Saidee Van Brower over the telephone for the delivery of the great register for the Fire Engine Bond Election this Tuesday, added "and you'll need it for the council meeting when they canvass the votes."

(That's the meeting where the council solemnly counts three absentee ballots and announces officially what everybody has already known for a week — how the election came out.)

"Yes," said Saidee. "They will canvass the votes the following Tuesday. They decided on it at the last council meeting."

"They can't canvass the votes on a legal holiday," said Joy.

What legal holiday?

Just the little old state primary election.

Votes for the Fire Engine Bonds will be canvassed on Wednesday and not on Primary Election Night according to new arrangements made in a hasty consultation between the city clerk and the mayor.

Excellent Cast Announced for Twelfth Night

By J. J. W.

Twelfth Night, in a streamlined version playing only an hour and a half, the final production of the 1942 Shakespeare Festival, will be presented at twilight on August 21, 22, 23, in the Forest Theater. Played as Herbert Heron directs it, with gusto and bawdy action in the drunk scenes, with wistful charm in the more delicate moments of the play, with absurd action in the scenes between the pompous steward and the wild-living revenge - plotting household of the rich countess—this will be an evening of sheer delight.

Sir Toby Belch, the good eater, the long drinker, the boisterous, loveable friend of the flesh-pots, is played by Michael Abbott. The simpering Sir Andrew Aguecheek conceals the keen mind of Robert Anderson. Feste, the fool, one of the most delightful roles in Shakespeare, is done with subtlety by Warren Keith Thomas. The steward Malvolio is taken this year by Heron. The part was first played in Carmel by Fred Bechdolt, thirty years ago, and his performance is still clearly remembered by those who saw it, for its delicious humor and the pathos of broken pride. In that same production Heron played Feste, the first of his long series of Shakespearean roles in the Forest Theater.

The Countess Olivia will be taken by Brenda Doyle, replacing Marian Finlay, who was called away during the early rehearsals. Miss Doyle is a young lady of charm and beauty, with a voice well-suited to the dignified loveliness of the Countess. Maria, that rich and lovely comedy role, is in the hands of Maxine Chevalier, whose stage work covers a wide range of characters.

Special costumes have been designed by Helena Heron and made for this production by Iva Rogers. The stage settings will be gay with color. Beginning with the entrance of the petulant Sir Toby Belch at 7:30, the show will end at 9 o'clock with the song of the Fool.

3 Congressional Candidates to Speak at Rally

hear their views on national and international policy. Each candidate will speak fifteen minutes, and following their talks, the spectators may question them from the floor.

The rally, to which candidates of all offices in this district have been invited, will be preceded by a 50-cent luncheon at 12:30 p.m. which will be served by the Pacific Grove-Monterey Red Cross canteen unit under Martha Brouchard. The luncheon is optional. For those who do not wish luncheon, there will be no charge. Those who desire luncheon must make their reservations by Tuesday morning in Carmel with Mrs. Blanchard P. Steeves, phone Carmel 693-R, in Monterey and Pacific Grove with Miss Ardelia Work, phone Montere 7465.

Buses leave Dolores and Sixth, Carmel, at 11:45 a.m., 12:25 and 1:15 p.m.

Speeches, with the congressional candidates first will begin at 1:30 p.m. Following the congressional candidates, the two men up for election from this region to the state assembly, George Dewey Pollock and Fred Weybret will speak. All candidates in this district, including those for county offices, have been invited to attend and all who have opponents, like the county clerk aspirants, have been asked to make short talks.

The Women Voters wish to stress the fact that this is a public meeting and that men and women both are cordially invited.

Willard W. Wheeler, actively interested in the congressional election, urges the men to attend.

"It is a chance for busy men to get a perspective on all the candidates first-hand, which they could not get in any other way," Wheeler said.

After the primaries, the League plans to hold a similar public meeting on the measures which will appear on the November ballot.
